

MIBE Graduate School for Nurses

TOGETHER with WMS groups, congregations, and mission-minded people WE CAN make a difference.

MIBE Graduate School for Nurses (GSN) has been equipping students in Indore, India to become educators, administrators and leaders in nursing since 1945. Historically, the Women's Missionary Society (WMS) has supported the school in various ways. The first principal of GSN was from the WMS and over the years many aspiring nurses who couldn't afford the tuition were helped by the WMS through grants.

The school's programs have changed since 1945. In 2008, a two-year post graduate degree program was started and there are currently plans to upgrade to four-year degree program. The school has a strong emphasis on academic excellence and compassion for healthcare in a collegial learning environment.

Last year, Indore experienced heavy rains. The school building was badly damaged with flooded classrooms and major damage was done to the hostel. For the safety of the students they were moved to another building.

With the everyday financial challenges of keeping the school open, the GSN is unable to fix the damages caused by the heavy rains.

The GSN has asked for help to build a tin roof for the school building to help prevent further damage and to ensure the safety of the students.
